Shop till you drop

Bella: Tom, look who's there!

Tom: Kelly! Hello there!

Kelly: Bella! Tom! What a surprise to see you here!

Bella: Look at those beautiful brand-new red shoes. You must have paid a lot for them, Kelly! How much did they cost?

Kelly: £50.

Bella: £50?! Bella, you can get them a lot cheaper. I bought a similar pair for just £20.

Kelly: Oh, well, too late now.

Kelly: Do you like shopping, Bella?

Bella: Oh, yes! I also like window shopping. The problem is that, every time I go window shopping I buy something.

Tom: Yes, I think it is a problem, Bella. You may be a shopaholic. Where do you normally go shopping or window shopping?

Bella: I prefer smaller shops, don't you?

Kelly: Aren't they much more expensive than the shopping centre in the city centre?

Bella: Well, the prices might be slightly higher than in the shopping centre, but they often have some great special offers.

Bella: By the way, have you seen my lovely little bracelet?

Kelly: Yes, it's beautiful, I love the colours!

Bella: It was much cheaper than the bracelets in the shopping centre, I got it from a small local shop in the sales last week.

Kelly: Oh, I see! It sounds like you got a real bargain!

Tom: Who do you normally go shopping with, guys?

Bella: My older sister, she can always spot a bargain! She helped me choose the bracelet as well.

Kelly: You are very quiet, Tom. What do you like shopping for?

Tom: You girls are exactly the same as my sister. You can talk about shopping for hours.

Kelly: Oh, look at you, and who bought this expensive-looking large black smart watch last Saturday?

Tom: You'll be surprised to hear that I only paid £15. Anyway, to answer your question Kelly, I like shopping for tech gadgets. You know, smartphones, computers, earbuds.

Bella: How is it possible that you only paid £15 for your new smartwatch? It is less than half price?

Tom: I know, right? I bought it online in a big promotion, online shopping makes buying things a lot easier and often much cheaper.

Kelly: Yes, but you know, I love looking at, touching and smelling things before I buy them.

Tom: Too much talk, girls! I'm really getting bored of talking about shopping.

Bella: You are right, Tom. No more talking, let's go shopping!

Kelly: I'd love to, but I have already spent all my pocket money.

Bella: We don't have to buy anything, we can just go window-shopping.

Kelly: Great! Let's do that! Are you coming, Tom?

Tom: No. I think I'll pass this time but thanks for inviting me.

Kelly: Do you like shopping? What do you like shopping for?
